Wets Go Down to Defeat in Votes on Amendments

Morris Sub-Amendment Killed; Steam Roller Tactics Used on Other Proposed Changes in Quick Succession

(By Associated Press.)

Madison.—The Matheson prohibition amendment bill was passed by a vote of 22 to 11 after the Morris sub-amendment, supported by prohibition Commissioner Smith, had been killed.

Wet senators and their following were unable to save any of their amendments from the slaughter of the United States Senate. Only the Cook amendment removing the ban on dealing with testimony and recommended by the Anti-Saloon league was accepted.

Assured of Passage.—The measure is not assured of final passage by the senate with the certainty that the original Cook amendment, offered in the senate by Senator Roche, will be adopted by the lower house, and the bill sent to the governor. His signature is expected despite the stand of his commissioner for the defeated sub-amendment.

Through the action on the five amendments offered there was no detection in the ranks of the drys, the break coming when on the final vote a number of the wets switched over to the bill.

Beavers' Fight in Vain.—The fight of the brewing interests to save beer for Wisconsin was unsuccessful. They said the Burke amendment which would have permitted prescription of any but spirituous liquors up to the Federal ruling of 4.7 gallons a month, so down to death with the rest of the "suggested changes."

First Move by Morris.—The first move was made by Senator Morris, author of the sub-amendment, who asked that the senate go into committee, to hear the prohibition commissioner discuss his bill. This motion was turned down by a vote of 17 to 14.

At this point Senator Bird, Wausau, arose and declared that there is a great deal of hypocrisy in the prohibition amendment, stating that if any one would bring in a measure to prohibit any person from keeping liquor in his home, he would vote for it.

Have Liquor in Cellar.—"Don't tell me such a measure would be unconstitutional," he said, "because it would not be. But the fact of the matter is that the Anti-Saloon league is supporting this bill to have liquor in their cellars. There are a number of good Christian souls who are willing to give up their liquor, but they don't want to have it in their cellars. They want to have it in their basements."

Attack was repeatedly made on the Anti-Saloon league and its lobbyists, who, according to Senator Bird, think they can get away with the liquor in their cellars. The senator also charged that the league received $100,000 out of the state last year, and that the biggest contribution came from the J. P. Morgan & Co. bank.

Swamp Root, which he claimed was drunk by "anyone who wanted to get drunk."

"They have grafted until they should be sent to jail for false pretenses," he said.

Steam Roller Starts.—Following defeat of the amendment offered by Senator Burke, steam roller tactics started on all amendments suggested. They went down to defeat one after another without any outward show of opposition, giving evidence that the senate was determined in its stand before the matter was taken up.

The Arnold amendment making rulings appealable to Wisconsin was killed 19 to 14. Then came the Garwin resolution calling for a referendum of the people before the law took effect, which was defeated 21 to 21, forcing Senator Bennett to amend it.

Midway for Postponement.—Vote on the sub-amendment, which was the crux of the prohibition fight, follows:

For indefinite postponement: Anderson, Buck, Grant, Denhardt, Huber, Pollock, Lange, Nye, Olson, Peterson, Ridgway, Roethlisberger, Severson, Skogmo, Smith, Staudenmayer, Tiltus, West—19.

Against indefinite postponement: Arnold, Pennington, Bennett, Beyer, Bird, Birke, Czerwinski, Hirsch, Jennings, Kleist, Moran, Morris, Mulberger—14.

GERMANY FROWNS ON ALLIED DEMAND

Bankers and Finance Writers Reject Proposition of Moving Gold.

(By Associated Press.) Berlin.—The German cabinet has not yet indicated the nature of the reply to the reparations commission's demand that the German gold reserve be transferred to the occupied zone. FARMERS TAKE RAIL RATE PLEA DIRECT TO HARDING

AGRICULTURALISTS FROM ALL PARTS OF U. S. MEET IN WASHINGTON.

PRESS DEMANDS

Have Hearing Before Interstate Commerce Commission on Aid to Commerce.

(By Associated Press.)—Farmers from all parts of the United States meeting here Wednesday under auspices of the National Farmers union decided to take their fight for a reduction in freight rates direct to President Harding.

This decision was reached after spokesmen for the farmers had conferred with members of the Interstate Commerce Commission and urged lower rates for farm products and agricultural machinery.

Officials of the National Farmers Union said the president probably would be asked to call a conference of shippers, labor and railroad labor board, interstate commerce commission, steel and other interests which furnish the railroad supplies, and bankers, to discuss a voluntary readjustment so as to restore commerce to its accustomed channel and give immediate freight rate reductions were urged at the informal hearing before Interstate Commerce commission.

Members of the union from many states were present headed by National Secretary Davis. They told the commission that policies reducing the loss now sustained by the farmers in the sale of their crops, a lowering of freight rates would be a big psychological factor in starting the market for farm products and a general price reduction in other lines.

Unable to market their own products, the farmers, the spokesmen said, are virtually at a standstill and are in prospect of complete starvation. Improving in time to bring better prices for next year's crops.

Ask for Suggestions.—Members of the union asked for suggestions that would make possible a reduction of freight rates in the face of high prices paid by railroads for equipment and labor.

COMRADE OF NORTH BRINGS HOME BODY OF GOLD PROSPECTOR

Port Arthur, Ont.—An 11 day journey by canoe, toboggan and dog team through the wilds of northern Ontario to bring back to civilization the body of W. E. Brown, an American gold prospector, ended Wednesday when T. Barker, Brown's companion and brother-in-law, reached this place.

The body, which had been hauled and carried several hundred miles, was encased in seven thicknesses of tarpaulin and strapped to a board. It will be taken by train to Plainville, Mich., for burial.

Brown died of pneumonia April 6, in a shack near the town of 130 miles north of Sioux Lookout, the nearest settlement.

Barker started the journey alone. After several days journeying with the body, he came across an Indian who accompanied him here.

A third member of the party, Frank Schaefer, son of a Rockford butcher, is believed to be still in the city, but has not been apprehended. He is the owner of a Cadillac touring car in which the three came to Janesville, Tuesday night.

"We came here to meet a revenue man," said Wentz when questioned as to the reason for carrying two guns. "We were going to do some work with him."

On Liquor Raids?—"What kind of work?" he was asked. "Oh, liquor raids and such things."

The three drove into Janesville Tuesday evening from Rockford and left their car in Stimpfle's garage, going from there to the Leonard hotel to spend the night. Apparently under the influence of liquor, police say two of them almost had to carry the third one the party down the street.

Investigation resulted in the arrest by Chief Morrissey and Officers Miller and Serstad of Wentz and Burton in a clothing store and Chief Morrissey, who carried two revolvers, a .32 calibre revolver and two boxes of cartridges.

They were taken to the police station and held in the city jail. Chief Morrissey said that the three have been watched by Rockford police but not caught in any trouble.

They may have brought moonshine into Janesville, said Chief Morrissey. The youths maintain their story about the revenue agent they were to meet.

They were to be arraigned in municipal court Wednesday afternoon. Efforts are being made to locate Schaefer.

He said that it is his opinion that the state and counties should get their construction funds well in hand, but at the same time they should make adequate provision for the maintenance of the roads and bridges.

HARDING STANDS FOR MONROEISM

President Asserts Faith in Old Doctrine of Unveiling of Statue.

New York.—A plea for renewed bonds of friendship among the American republics was sounded by President Harding, chief speaker at the unveiling of the statue of Simon Bolivar, the liberator of South America, which was presented to this city by the Venezuela government Tuesday.

A recommitment to peace and liberty as an example for a new world was urged by the chief executive.

Monroe Doctrine Freedom. Re-stating the Monroe doctrine, Mr. Harding asserted it never meant a policy of selfishness or narrowness but was a charter of American independence to maintain which the United States was willing to fight. It was added that the policy of the American republics must not err on the side of too great aloofness and that in the present world chaos Pan-Americanism must stand 'sympathetic and generous Americanism.'

"Our greatest service," he said, "lies in standing firmly together making ourselves strong that we may give our strength, rich that we may contribute our riches, and confident that we may inspire others with confidence. Herein lie for us both duty and opportunity, duty to those whom we may help, opportunity in helping others also to help ourselves."

Not Selfish Doctrine. In his reference to the Monroe doctrine the president reviewed misconceptions he said had been placed upon it and alluded to the skepticism in some quarters that it ever would be enforced in an emergency.

"The history of the generations since that doctrine was proclaimed," he continued, "has proven that we never intended it selfishly; that we had no dream of exploitation. On the other side, the history of the last decade certainly must have convinced all the world that we stand willing to defend, if necessary, to protect these continents these sturdy young democracies, from oppression and tyranny."

Conny McDonald, who with his son, Roy McDonald, operates the Carlton hotel in Edgerton, has a few things to learn about fishing.

It happened that Van Ess Green, an Edgerton tobacco buyer, went fishing down to the Newville bridge last Thursday. He baited up and before making a cast on the lake side of the river, did a few magic things as is the habit of all good and superstitious fishermen. No sooner did he bait his hook than the reel clicked and sped out. When Green towed his prize ashore the pike weighed seven and a half pounds.

The fish was shown at the Carlton hotel. Conny McDonald admired the "finland whale."

He decided he would have a try at handling the grandchild of the pike caught. The big sized Friday and Saturday did not dampen his ardor. With his boots he plowed through the deep drifts to the bridge early in the morning. There he met Edward Peters and Scott Hosen, who had fished for hours without a bite. McDonald tried like a fish but with a nibble of even a weak bluegill. So at last McDonald called a taxi from Edgerton to haul him in. He refused to buck the drifts six miles back to Edgerton.

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE

By Marion Rubincam

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Ruth, friend and Myra Wood are cousins and have been so from the time they were children. When they have finished school they plan to go to the city together, where Myra is to study and Ruth is to enter a business college. Myra wants the pleasure of the city, but Ruth must make money for her family.

Her chances of going are helped by winning $100 as a prize when she graduates. A few days before the girls are to start, Ruth is crying and Myra is laughing. Ruth is crying because she cannot go—her one great chance to be something in life has been taken from her.

Myra goes, however, and Ruth stays home, faced with worries over her father's health and her family's lack of money. Tim Turner, whom she had known from a child, tells her he is in love with her.

CHAPTER XVII. TIM'S PLEADING

It was so unusual to see Tim Turner serious that Ruth was almost frightened. This wasn't the good-natured boy, whose eyes were always squinting up with a laugh—this serious, grown-up man before her.

Ruth had a queer trick of becoming suddenly impersonal in critical or serious circumstances. It was as though she saw two people, one of whom stayed quiet and watched the other. And she had something of this dual feeling now.

He had said, "I love you."

And it hadn't been in the casual, half-reckless fashion in which he occasionally told her she "was a nice child" or that he liked her. This was the grown man who demanded the grown woman.

Ruth was not prepared for this situation at all. She wanted to say something. Somewhere in the back of her brain she was asking, "What could be said under the circumstances." Actually, however, no words came.

But she let Tim hold her hands, and after a minute she looked up at him.

Then she felt herself literally picked up from the chair. She felt his arms around her so tight the breath was almost shut from her. She was almost as if she were to be free. Consciously she was glad.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

Today I walked through a bank just to have the feeling of being near some money, and I noticed the date on the calendar and I realized with a pang of regret that it was our wedding anniversary. That "pang of regret" part may sound queer to you, but it wasn't regret that I was in a position to have a wedding anniversary, but regret that I wasn't home to celebrate it joyfully with you. We could go to some good movie and then hit a couple of sloughs of the creek and feel engaged again, if you happened to be in good humor.

There was a picture on the calendar, too. It was a picture of a wreck, but I don't think it had anything to do with reminding me of our wedding anniversary.

Anyway, I'm sending you a little present as a reminder of the happy date. It's a book called "13,000 Words Often Mispronounced." You know one of the best things you do is call words out by their names, and while I don't mean to insinuate that you're on bad terms with the entire 13,000, still it can't do you anything but good to look the book over carefully and compare the way it says they ought to be pronounced with the way you generally dish them out. One of the best things about the book is that you won't be able to argue with it like you do with me when I'm right about a word and you because her kid beats ours 500 per cent in the matter of teeth. In other words a ratio of 5 to 0. If you'll ask my mother she'll tell you I was very shy as a baby when it came to producing vowels, and yet you yourself admitted that it was my smile that won you by detracting attention from the rest of my face.

Affectionately,

the most glorious person in the world—and growing more so every minute as the romance of the situation settled deeper and deeper in her mind.

"Do you think it would be nice?" Tim was evidently not satisfied with the tone of her answer.

"Yes, I suppose so. I hadn't thought about it, you know." And Ruth laughed this time, a laugh that fluttered a little.

"I don't believe you love me then. Do you, Ruthie, dear?"

"Yes—yes. But, Tim, you go so fast!" Ruth held out her hands to him, almost with a gesture of appeal. "Tim, dear, I only got myself used to the idea that you might be in love with me—and now you—you—"

"I know, I grabbed you and nearly strangled you and kissed you. And now I want to know whether you'd be happy living with me in a two-story house on Carlyle Street."

But for all the apology in his speech, his manner remained the same—half-pleading, half-teasing, wholly in love. He caught the girl to him again. Ruth had risen and stood near the mantel—and he kissed her, kissed her till she was almost breathless and struggled to be free again. He was rough in a way, but she did not resent his roughness. "I don't know," she said at last. "I do love you, I do—wait"—as he came towards her again, "only—it makes so much come at once. Please—let me think about it, or rather, let me have time to think about it. Please don't say anything more about it just yet."

What Shall I Do?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

What Can She Do?

"Dear Miss Page—What would you suggest to do with a stubborn and high-tempered man? We have only been married a short time and he never wants to do anything I want to do unless I give in. He shows his temper. I don't mind giving in part of the time, but I don't like to all the time. When young people come to spend the evening he never wants to play the games the rest do, and if we play anyway he gets mad and says insulting things till they get up and leave and it makes me very much ashamed of him. I have talked to him but that doesn't seem to do any good.—Disgusted."

If he was only a suitor I could tell you quick enough what to do. But since he is your husband—it's harder. I think the only thing you can do is to try, try and keep on trying with infinite patience and tact, to understand him and teach him gradually the way to happiness for you both.

When you talk to him, try to do it without anger or tears—just quietly explain things as you see them. When you give in to him, tell him that you do it gladly for him, and that you know he will do things for you too in the same way—then ask him the next time the occasion arises. It will take courage and perseverance. Dear Woman—and good luck go with you.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you think it appropriate for a girl of 15 to write to a boy who owes her a letter? Perhaps he did not get the other. Friendship is a good thing, isn't it? NO ANSWER.

The girl should not write until the boy has answered her previous letter. Mail does not mislead as often as young girls would like to think it does.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a friend whom I love very much. He has said something to me that I have not liked, but I love him just the same. I don't think he cares for me. How can I make him care? Is it advisable to ignore a heart? I can hardly care for him. Please tell me what I should do, forget him or keep on loving him?

It is useless to try to make the young man care for you. "Chase love and it will flee from thee; flee love and it will follow thee." I would certainly advise you to forget the young man and get on with your life. Never ignore your friends. It is always best to be pleasant.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 13 years of age and go to a high school. I am very popular among the girls, and most of the boys are friendly toward me and we have good times in school, but no one takes a personal interest in me. My chums have what they call "a bean" and are always telling me about their good times. This makes me unhappy and dissatisfied. I don't know how to get rid of them, but because I have to miss it all.

I try to do right always and not be loud on the street. My chums are very noisy and run after boys and laugh or hyphens who could take me and for this reason do not get out in crowds often. THANK YOU.

Content yourself with girl friends, reading and studies for a while longer. At the age of 15 you are very young to be going with boys and should not worry in the least because you are not popular. Keep to your high ideals and do not let them go.

Are we too young to go with the boys? It is proper to go to the show with a girl friend and then if the boys go with ask to take us home to go? They have always treated us right except in that way and we are not always take us to the show.—Worried Helen and Mabel.

You are not too young to have good boy friends. Girls, I don't care if boys are ashamed of you. I think they probably haven't the money—or else they don't want to spend it because you have shown them that they are ashamed of you. If they go home without spending the money to take you to the show, it isn't so improper as it is unwise to do this. If they find you come home with the girl you wish to go with, soon be endeavoring to earn enough money to take you out themselves.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in care of the "What Shall I Do?" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, stamp and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.—The Editor.

Macaroni and Celery—Cut enough celery in inch pieces to fill a cup; boil 10 minutes in salted water. Drain and mix with one cup boiled macaroni. Put in buttered baking dish and pour over it one cup white sauce, season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle buttered crumbs and grated cheese over the top and bake till top is delicate brown.

Cabbage Salad—One-half head cabbage cut fine, three-quarters cup vinegar, one-half cup sugar, small lump butter, one teaspoon salt, pepper, yolks of two eggs, one-half cup sweet cream. Let all come to a boil except yolks of eggs and cream, which stir in slowly. Pour over cabbage.

Cereal Soup—Boil three-quarters pound round steak with three or four carrots, diced. The Big Town Round Up

It was not logical, of course. She was moving toward the destiny she had chosen for herself. But there was an instinct in her, a savage, a primitive, a thing that she could not control, that she could not suppress. In the privacy of her room she passed hours of fearful regret for these bursts of fierce insurrection.

Then days before the wedding, Clarence had been giving an informal tea for her at his home. He had come to her on the wine and had said to her, "I'm awfully sorry, Clara," she pleaded. "We ought not to have come so far. Please tell our friends I've been delayed, and I won't do it again."

Bromfield hung up the receiver in cold fury. He restrained himself for the moment, but the necessary explanation, and went through with the tea somehow. But as soon as his guests were gone he gave himself up to his anger. He began planning a revenge on the man who had said to him, "I'm awfully sorry, Clara."

A plan began to unfold itself to him. It was one which called for expert assistance. He looked up Jerry Durand, got him on the telephone, and made an appointment to meet him secretly.

CHAPTER XXVII.
"No Violence"

The ex-pupils sat back in the chair, chewing an unlighted black cigar, his fishy eyes fixed on Bromfield. Scars still decorated his colorless face, souvenirs of a battle in which he had been beaten by a man he hated. Durand had a capacity for silence. He waited now for the ex-pupils from the upper world to tell him his business.

Clarence discovered that he had an unexpected repugnance to doing this. A fastidious sense of the obligations of class could not be justified even in his loose code of ethics. He examined the form of his Malacca cane nervously.

"I've come to you, Mr. Durand."

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove it.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work. People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, gripping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without grating pain or disagreeable effects. Dr. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

GRANDMOTHER KNEW

There Was Nothing So Good for Congestion and Colds as Mustard

But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burned and blistered while it acted. Get the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

Mustard does it. It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. It is scientifically prepared, so that it works wonders, and yet does not blister the tenderest skin.

Gently massage Mustard into the finger-tips. See how quickly it brings relief—how speedily the pain disappears.

Use Mustard for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches, muscles, bruises, chills, frost-bites, colds of the chest. It often prevents pneumonia.

Billy Whiskers

There were very few occasions and small reason for Billy Whiskers to envy individuals of his kind, for as you have often been told, he was a kind, gentle, and very good fellow. He was a fine looking, but a better carriage, was larger and stronger, he could leap farther and but harder than ordinary goats, and as his good position was not often questioned, even though he sometimes grew overbearing and a trifle too boastful of his prowess.

"O-o-o-h," he said, peeping out from the thick side of the German woman's skirts, only to find the other goat doing exactly the same thing. "He's a fine animal, to be sure, and might prove a rival to me," he thought, "but I'll show him that I'm the best of the bunch."

One day, Billy Whiskers was standing in the middle of the street, looking up at the sky, when he saw a small, dark, round object falling from the sky. He looked at it for a moment, then he looked at the ground, and he saw a small, dark, round object lying on the ground. He looked at it for a moment, then he looked at the ground, and he saw a small, dark, round object lying on the ground. He looked at it for a moment, then he looked at the ground, and he saw a small, dark, round object lying on the ground.
